. . . . . 1950 MUNHINOTU

In preparing this annual, the staff has attempted to present the idea of democracy as it is seen in Gresham High School. We have tried to present the school as it appears to everyone—the first-term freshmen, the graduating senior, the faculty, the school board and the public. Here are shown not only the big events which go down in the records but also those everyday scenes which to students will symbolize Gresham Union High School.

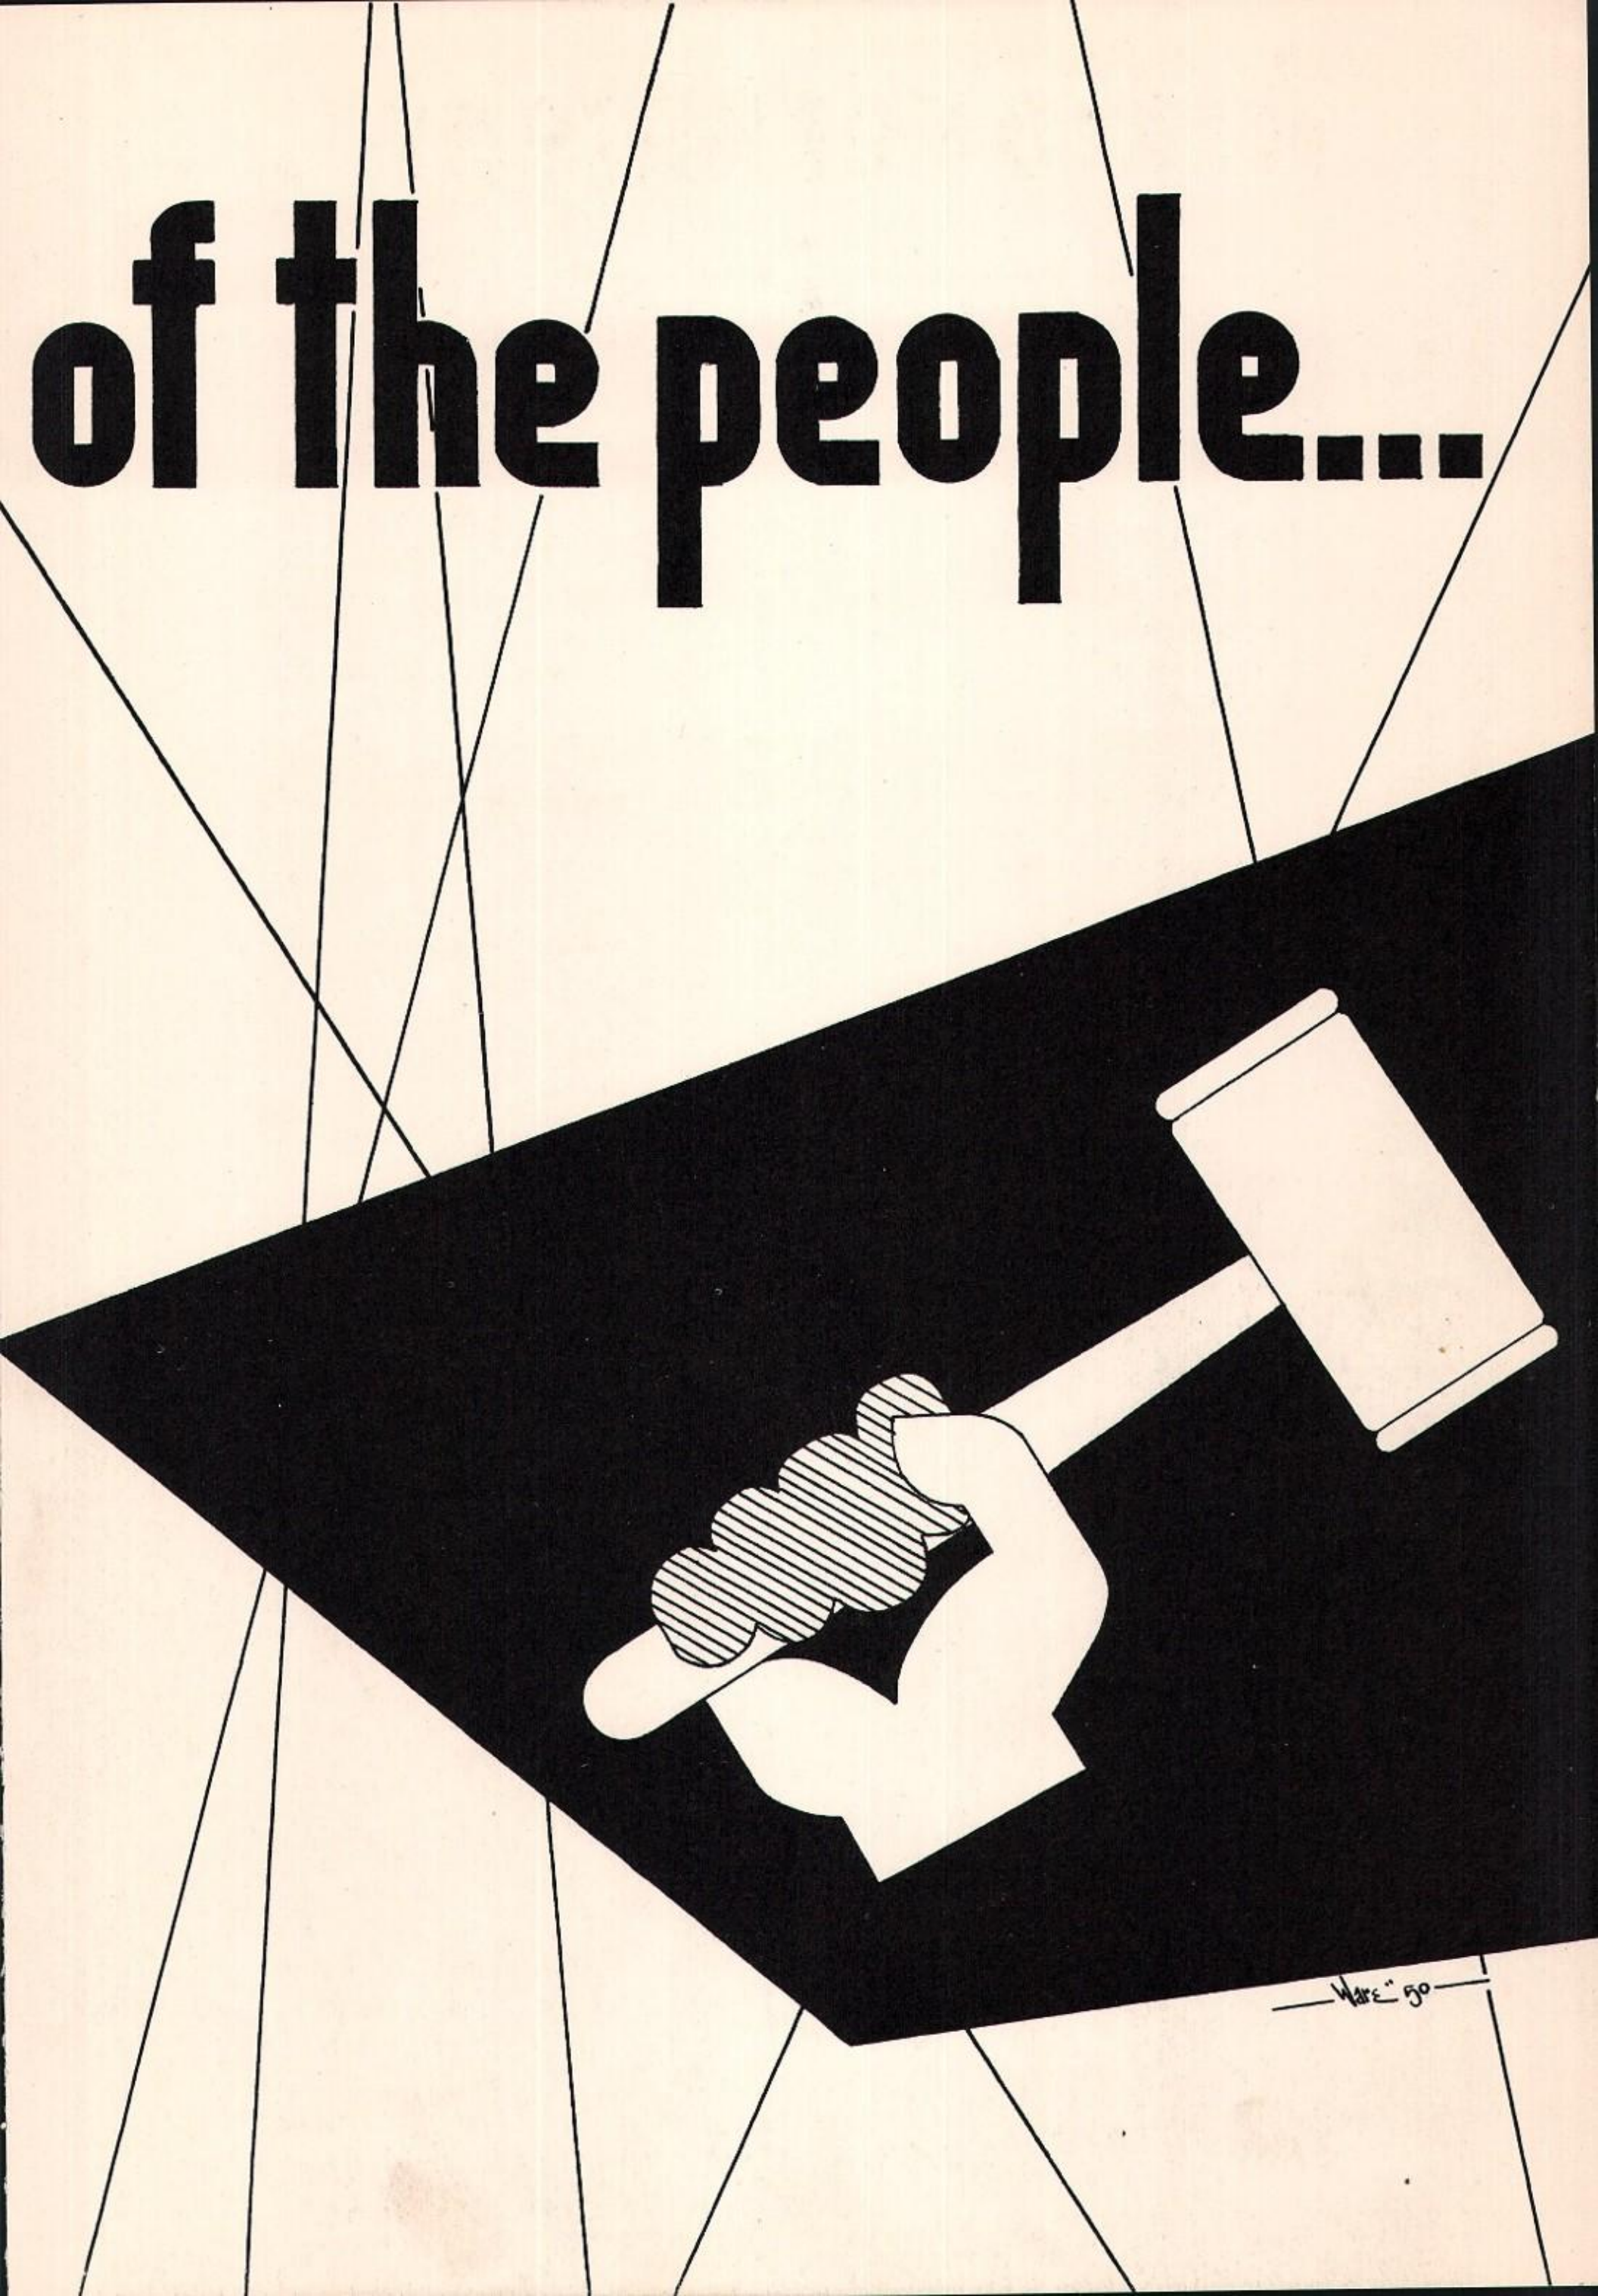
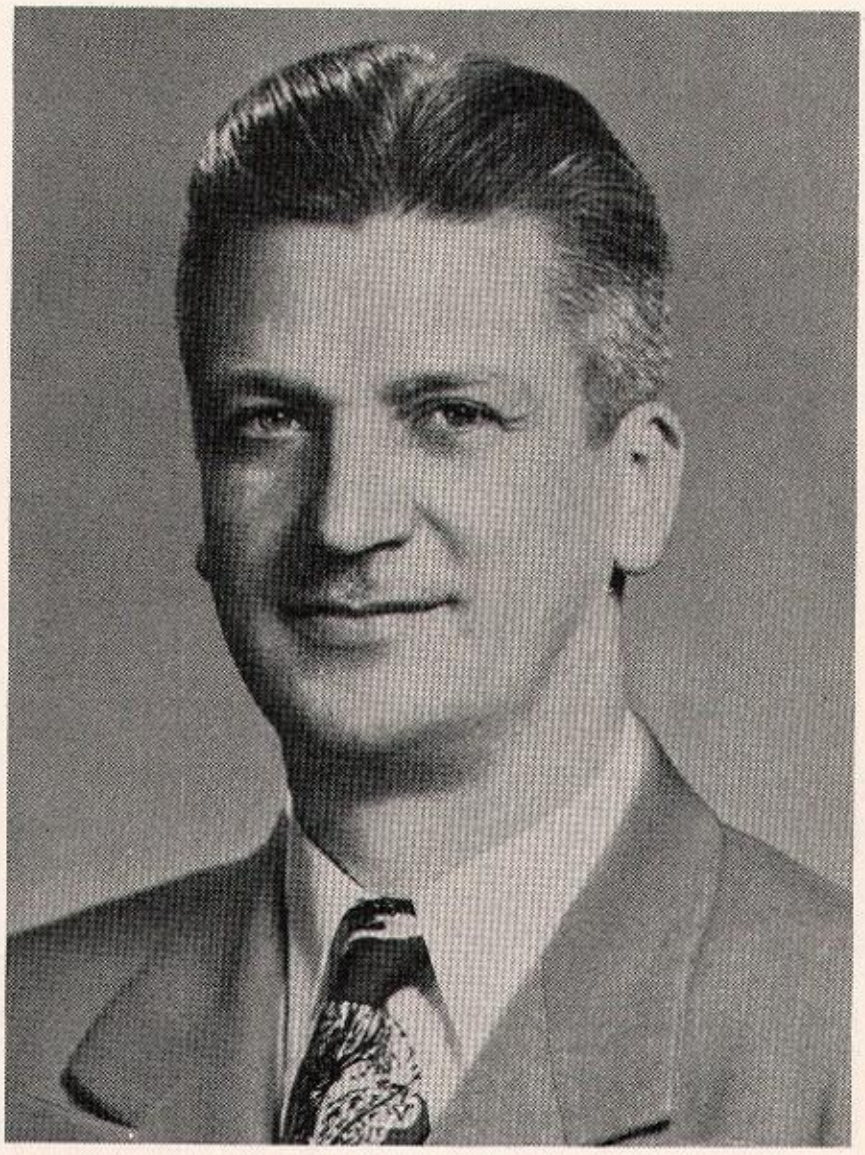
of the people...



DEDICATION

To our advisor, Miss Hazel Newhouse, we seniors wish to dedicate this 1950 issue of the Munhinotu, for she has guided our class democratically through four years of high school. Because she has stood by us and worked for us in accomplishing all that we have done, she will always occupy a prominent place in our memories.



E. G. LARSON, Chairman

SCHOOL BOARD

The Board of Directors is the democratic foundation of Gresham High School. They are elected by the legal voters of the school district, to build, maintain, and operate the school. They are the "people's voice" in the management of the school, and they conscientiously work toward making the school one of the best.

Gresham's School Board has five members coming from separate elementary school districts, but who attempt, nevertheless, to represent the entire population served by the school. E. G. Larson, chairman of the group, is from Gresham, District No. 4. Other members are: W. W. Masten, Lynch, District No. 28; V. H. Sipe, Union, District No. 26, Clackamas County; E. E. Settergren, Orient, District (joint) No. 6; and Harvey Snyder, Powell Valley, District No. 26, Multnomah County. George W. Page is the clerk, appointed by the School Board and a resident of Gresham.

The School Board decides on all matters of policy as well as handling the innumerable small details necessary to operate a school of Gresham's size. They authorize the spending of money for school expenses, plan the budget, hire employers, and okay all improvements in the school's building, curriculum and management.

Much of Gresham's student body comes from non-high school districts, which complicates the duties of the School Board. They, nevertheless, work for the welfare of all the students of the school and resolve that all attending shall receive as good instruction as this school is able to afford.

An outstanding event of the year was the Faculty Assembly where the teachers "let down their hair" and presented a very entertaining program. Featured was a one-act play, "The Ugly Duckling". Miss Winifred Casterline directed the program.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The student council is composed of students who are elected by their classmates to direct the activities of the student body. They okay the expenditure of student body funds, limit the nominees for student body officers from the petitions presented and decide on other matters pertaining to the welfare of the student body.

This year they authorized the money to buy robes for the Choir and limited the nominees for '50-'51 offices.

The Student Council sits to guard the honor of Gresham Union High School, to determine policies with respect to student affairs and to supervise in the general way expenditures of money. This is done subject to faculty approval, and it is rare that the judgment of our student council members is questioned, or changes suggested in their decisions. The council initiates new activities, supervises old ones, perfects old practices and keeps alive worthwhile traditions.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

As a typically bewildered freshman class, the seniors entered Gresham high school in the fall of 1946. Miss Hazel Newhouse was awarded the ambitious class to advise.

Their first meeting together was highlighted by the selection of these class officers: Ken Sipe, president; Carol Williams, vice-president; Janice Kesterson, secretary; Joanne Olson and Carl Nelson, student council members; Jim Holcombe, sergeant-at-arms, and Joanne Chapman, Girls' League representative.

The well remembered freshman party, the class trip to the beach and the traditional cleaning of the trophy case made that year significant.

A little more self-assured, the class returned as sophomores, led by class president, Roy Bodine; vice-president, Norma Taylor; secretary, Betty Holland; sergeant-at-arms, Junior Walters; council members, Ken Sipe and Carol Williams, and Girls' League representative, Edna Mulkey.

That year the now-traditional choice of a king and queen of the sophomore party was started. Bob Rounsefell and Pat McCullough reigned as "king and queen of hearts" of the Valentine party. The class made a trip to the beach that year also.

Junior class officers were: president, Jim Thibodeau; vice-president, Howard Butzer; secretary, Barbara Bush; sergeant-at-arms, John Cronin; council members, Roy Bodine and Jean Hathaway; Girls' League representative, Ruby Takashima.

The lower halls were invaded that year by this class, who presented a successful production of the play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay", directed by Miss Marjorie Machen and Miss Newhouse. Theme of the junior-senior prom was "In a Chinese Temple Garden". It was staged only after much hard work and preparation.

As juniors they chose the class motto, "Of a good beginning cometh a good end", which aptly describes the progress the class has made. The carnation was named class flower and rose and white became the class colors.

The senior year, always the most interesting and eventful, was presided over by: president, Bob Hays, vice-president, Louis Elam; secretary, Lael Tillstrom; council members, Jim Thibodeau and Barbara Bush; sergeant-at-arms, Harvey Rutz, and Girls' League representative, Donna Lambert.

The presentation of "Life With Father" was directed by Miss Janette Richardson and Miss Newhouse. This constituted another "first", since the play was presented before the junior play in order not to interfere with graduation activities.

The senior mothers' tea; senior skip day, held on a Monday for the first time; the banquet, whose theme was "Rhapsody in Blue"; the prom; baccalaureate and the graduation exercises were the outstanding events of the year.

The class chose to revive the tradition of giving a gift to the school and presented a flagpole for the football field.

The mid-century class is leaving Gresham high school this year, but the traditions they have helped maintain, the friendships they have cultivated and the memories they cherish will not be gone.

In the title role of the domineering "lord of his house", father was Andy Nielson, supported by the gentle, budget-foolish mother, Wanda Makinson. The four sons of the family ranged from Clarence, suffering from first love, played by Dale Lingle, through John, an enthusiastic trouble-finder, portrayed by Arden Craig; typically boyish Whitney, otherwise known as Harvey Rutz, and the baby of the family, Harlan, played by Junior Walters. Cousin Cora with her family disturbing manner was played by Verity Henderson. Norma Taylor was Mary, Clarence's "one and only". The minister, Dr. Lloyd, was Howard Butzer; maids were, successively, Sandra Ascher, Barbara Bush, Barbara Tallman and Edith Engel. The two doctors were Douglas Geymer and Bob Whalley.

Miss Janette Richardson directed the play with the assistance of class advisor Miss Hazel Newhouse.

ARGUS STAFF

There were several groups responsible for the success of the Argus this year. The job of compiling and preparing news and features fell to the writing staff under the editorship of Ruby Takashima, assisted by associate editor Don Dederick. News editor for the first of the year was Jerry Dick, but Carol Wood took over the latter part of the year. Feature editor was Patsy Pfeifer, while Don Gaines handled the sports page.

The editorial board was created to determine the policy of the Argus on controversial school and community issues. They meet periodically to stimulate interest in these issues.

Another important group of the Argus "family" was the Personality of the Week Committee, commonly referred to as the "P.O.W. Committee". This group, composed of one representative from each club and department of the school, met to choose the person who was to be "personality of the week". This honor is awarded to someone who had done something worth while for the school in the field of activities but had received little recognition for it.

One of the most hard working groups in the school was the Argus business staff, who supported 50 per cent of the cost of the paper through their ad-soliciting efforts. Business manager was Eunice Park. Miss Janette Richardson advised the group.

Pins were awarded Argus writers and business staff workers on the basis of their service to the paper. This year five students were sent to the Oregon Scholastic Press Conference at Eugene, whereas only two had been sent in previous years. Five writers also entered journalism competition at Pacific University, where Patsy Pfeifer won second place in news feature competition.

"To promote good sportsmanship, to act as a mixer, to stimulate interest in various sports, and to give the girls an opportunity to participate in outside activities" is the purpose of Gresham's Girls' Athletic Association.

Guided by advisors Mrs. Dorothy Craven and Mrs. Marilee Morgan, the group sponsored the Football Dance. Its theme was "It's Magic", and Queen Patricia McCullough reigned with princesses Norma Taylor and Kathleen O'Neal.

A party for new members, a Christmas dinner, a bowling party, a Valentine buffet supper and an Easter Tea for the teachers were all activities of the club.

Officers for the year were: president, Emma Bartholomew; vice-president, Gertrude Byers; secretary, Rayma Jean Kirwan, and treasurer, Norma Erickson.
